

Awesome God

Two days ago, I couldn't quite wait for the [Green] Scapulars to arrive, so I made a mad dash to our Catholic bookstore and bought one, took it to the Priest yesterday to have blessed, wrote my husbands name on it, prayed my daily Rosary with it then placed it under the sheets where my husband lays at night, which is also where a blessed Brown Scapular is placed.

At night, after telling my husband a little bit about the "Warning" and having a little discussion about religion and the Bible, which is unusual, we fell asleep having a good talk, rather than him putting me down for my Catholic beliefs. That in itself is a miracle! Ha, ha.

Anyway, during the night sometime I woke up not remembering for any reason, looked at my husband and about where his chest and neck meet, I saw a green glow.

Imagine putting your hands together, pinkies together, holding something in the hands as to show items inside. That's about the shape of this green glow, not able to see hands though. I looked closely and in it was a Green Scapular, a Brown Scapular and a small silver and gold Rosary.

The image vanished immediately, but the reassurance that my prayers are being answered were multiplied. I immediately sat up in bed and as gently as I could, made the Sign of the Cross on my husband. I kissed my Brown Scapular from around my neck and held it tightly as I fell back asleep.

Now I know the rest happened in dreams, but while dreaming of my bedroom, I saw little fluorescent green glows just like the one from my husbands chest, come and go. I woke up this morning and placed my hand on the bed where I saw the scapulars in the glow, and directly below it is where I placed the scapulars in the sheets.

What I don't quite understand, is I didn't place a Rosary there. I'm not quite sure what to make of it, maybe it was Mary's "calling card", saying she's in full control. I hope so.

I feel so incredibly blessed, not only to have my prayers heard by the Divine Jesus and His Mother, but to have seen such power, and majesty, even though it was just an instant. Oh how awesome our Lord is. Even those words can't fully explain how wonderful He is.

Submitted by Vivian, reprinted with permission.

